

Short breaks overlooking unique new nature reserve

A stunning new nature reserve on the West Sussex coast has created a unique opportunity for stays close to nature.

Bunn Leisure is offering out-of-season breaks on the Selsey peninsula where the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds (RSPB) is developing a saltmarsh habitat for birds, water voles, great crested newts and reptiles.

The reserve has been created as part of a multi-million-pound coastal protection scheme where the barrier has been breached to allow the sea to gently flow into a new intertidal area at Medmerry.

It's the idyllic retreat for nature lovers to enjoy a relaxing break with panoramic views across the nature reserve, which is set against the backdrop of the South Downs National Park.

New footpaths, viewing points and cycleways are being created by the project and Bunn Leisure's own mile of beach is on your doorstep for great winter seaside walks.

Well established Pagham Harbour Local Nature Reserve is only a stone's throw away, with a full calendar of guided walks and events including Wildfowl & Wader Walks to see the yapping gaggles of brent geese which feed in the area.

It's a nature lover's haven – there are even seahorses living beneath the East Beach lifeboat station along the coast.

Bunn Leisure's four-night midweek and three-night weekend breaks start from £154 for up to six people. A choice of accommodation includes holiday homes and more luxurious houses for larger groups. Its facilities are open all season with catering, from takeaways and a supermarket to pub food and restaurants. There's an indoor pool and Oasis complex and evening entertainment if you want it.

To own a piece of paradise for all-season getaways, the new five-star West Point development has 28 recently released holiday homes overlooking the nature reserve. The top-of-the-range holiday homes have large verandas, hot tubs, spacious 40ft pitches and private parking on a gated road. They are on one of the longest sections of undeveloped coastline between Southampton and Brighton.

If you're staying for longer, nautical Portsmouth with its Historic Dockyard, Spinnaker tower, Blue Reef Aquarium and Gunwharf Quays offer great days out. Goodwood is good for a flutter and cultural Chichester and cosmopolitan Brighton are less than an hour away.
