Bunn Leisure supports Movember campaign

A West Sussex holiday park is encouraging men to pay more attention to their health by inviting a Macmillan Cancer Support nurse to spend time with their guests during 'Movember'.

The Movember movement sees men around the world sporting moustaches of all shapes and sizes throughout November to raise awareness of men's health, focusing in particular on prostate and testicular cancer.

John Bunn, managing director of Bunn Leisure on the Selsey peninsula, is supporting Movember by enlisting the help of Macmillan Cancer Support.

He said: "We know cancer affects people's lives in many different ways. Movember is a fun way to promote a really important message, and we want to show our support by enabling our guests to find out more information in complete confidence.

"After the success of our last collaboration with Macmillan Cancer Support, where two nurses came to Bunn Leisure during Breast Cancer Awareness Month, we have invited the team back to offer help and advice throughout Movember.

"Over the last four years, our caravan owners have raised more than £30,000 for Macmillan Cancer Support, which is a charity very close to our hearts."

According to Cancer Research UK, prostate cancer is the second most common cancer in the UK, and 1 in 8 men will be diagnosed with the disease in their lifetime.

To help people find out more about coping with cancer, a Macmillan Cancer Support nurse will spend the day at Bunn Leisure talking to guests and offering free, confidential information and support.

The Macmillan Mobile Information and Support Service, will be at the park on Saturday, November 11, between 10.30am and 3pm.

Helen Mitchell, a Macmillan Information and Support Specialist said: "On the date mentioned above, we're here to answer any questions about cancer.

“Whether you want to know what symptoms to look out for, need advice about managing the side effects of your treatment, or want to find local support for carers, come along and see us. We’d be happy to help.”

There will be free written material on cancer prevention, stopping smoking, spotting the signs and symptoms of cancer, and how Macmillan can support someone affected by cancer, physically, emotionally and financially.

Bunn Leisure guests will be able to speak to Helen on a one-to-one basis, as well as taking away information for free.

If you are unable to visit on the day but have questions about cancer, visit www.macmillan.org.uk or call Macmillan free on 0808 808 00 00 (Monday to Friday, 9am to 8pm).

Notes to Editors: About Macmillan Cancer Support

There are 2.5 million people living with cancer in the UK. One in two people are likely to get cancer in their lifetimes. Cancer can affect everything, including a person’s body, relationships and finances.

Macmillan Cancer Support provides practical, emotional and personal support to people affected by cancer every year. The charity is there to support people during treatment, help with work and money worries, and listen when people need to talk about their feelings.

Macmillan receives no government funding and relies on generous donations from the public. People up and down the country show their support for Macmillan – from hosting or attending a World’s Biggest Coffee Morning to running a marathon or giving up alcohol – so the charity can help more and more people affected by cancer every year.

Life with cancer is still your life and Macmillan is there to help you live it. If you want information or just to chat, call 0808 808 00 00 (Monday to Friday, 9am–8pm) or visit www.macmillan.org.uk
